

Aurora Credit Union Board votes to a proposed merger with Educators Credit Union

All of our members should have recently received a letter sharing the exciting news that the Aurora Credit Union Board of Directors voted to a proposed merger with Educators Credit Union, effective Jan. 1, 2019. The proposed merger combines two strong organizations, enhancing value for all members through increased products, services, resources and conveniences.

When Educators Credit Union approached Aurora Credit Union to propose a merger, it wasn't just Educators' equal financial strength and added service and technology offerings that interested our Board of Directors. It was our shared core values that convinced board members that a merger with Educators was the best decision for our members.

Aurora Credit Union and Educators share very similar values in that both credit unions are member focused. Our members come first. Educators' core values of honesty, integrity, fairness, respect and excellence align well with those of our credit union.

Educators' mission statement is to help their members achieve their personal financial objectives by anticipating their needs and exceeding their expectations with excellent service and products.

"The opportunity to offer our members added convenience, services and resources - including technology we currently can't offer - is an important reason why we feel a merger is the best for our members," says Nancy Majewski, chair of the Aurora Credit Union Board of Directors. "But it goes beyond that," she adds. "Educators has great financial resources and staff to help members, plus a strong service culture for the member that will enable us to truly place the loyal relationships we have with our members first."

You have the opportunity to learn more about Educators Credit Union and ask questions at these upcoming events. You are encouraged to attend a special meeting on May 8, where you will have the opportunity to vote on the proposed merger. You can only vote in person, so we hope to see you there!
